to his majesty unviolated. Carendon.
This strength diffus'd
No less through all my sinews, joints, and bones,
Than thine, while I preserv'd these locks unshorn,
The pledge of my unviolated vow. Milton.
UNVIRTUOUS. adj. Wanting virtue.
If they can find in their hearts that the poor, unvirtuous, fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will be the ministers. Shakespeare. Merry Wives of Windsor.
UNVISITED. adj. Not resorted to.
In some wild zone
Dwell, not unvisited of heav'n's fair light, Secure. Milton's Par. Lost, b. ii.
UNIFORM. adj. Wanting uniformity.
Such an ununiform piety is in many so exactly apportioned to Satan's interest, that he has no cause to with the change of his tenure. Decay of Piety.
UNVOYAGEABLE. adj. Not to be passed over or voyaged.
Not this unvoyageable gulph obscure,
Detain from following thy illustrious track. Milton.
UNWOUND. adj. Not incited; not praised.

That never words were mulish to thine ear,
Unless I spake. Shakespeare. Comedy of Errors.
UNWED. adj.
1. Not put to use; unemployed.
She, whose husband about that time died, forgetting the absent Plangus, or, at least, not hoping of him to assist her in a purpose, left no art unweav'd, which might keep the line from breaking, whereat the fish was already taken. Sidney.
Sure he that made us with such large discourse,
Looking before and after, gave us not
That capability and godlike reason,
To rust in us unweav'd. Shakespeare's Hamlet.
2. Not accustomed.
He, unweav'd to such entertainment, did shortly and plainly answer what he was. Sidney, b. ii.
One, whole eyes,
Albeit unweav'd to the melting mood,
Dropt tears as fast as the Arabian trees
Their medicinal gum. Shakespeare. Othello.
What art thou?
Not from above; no, thy way looks betray Diminish'd light, and eyes unweav'd to day. Dryden.
UNWEALED. adj. Useless; serving no purpose.
I was persuaded, by experience, that it might not be unweav'd in the capacities it was intended for. Glauville.

down upon them, and they are as yet utterly unweav'd for flying. Adore's Antidote against Disbelief.
As when the building gains a surer stay,
We take th' unweav'd scaffolding away. Dryden.
Pleas'd to find his age
Declining, not unweav'd to his lord. Philips.
UNUSUAL. adj. Not common; not frequent; rare.
With this unusual and strange court they went on, till God, in whose heav'nly worldly judgments I nothing doubt but that there may lie hidden mercy, gave them over to their own inventions. Hosier.
You gain your point, if your industrious art
Can make unweav'd words easy and plain. Religionman.
A sprightly red vermilion all her face,
And her eyes languish with unweav'd grace. Granville.
That peculiar turn, that the words should appear new, yet not unweav'd, but very proper to his auditors. Felton.
The river flows redundant, and attacks
The ling'ring remnant with unweav'd tide. Philips.
UNUSUALNESS. n. f. Uncommonness; infrequency.
It is the unusuality of the time, not the appearance, that surprises Alcibiades. Bryson.
UNUTTERABLE. adj. Ineffable; inexpressible.
Sighs now breath'd
Unutterable; which the spirit of pray'r
Impri'd, and wing'd for heav'n with speedier flight
Than loudest oratory. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xi.
It wounds my soul
To think of your unutterable sorrows,
When you shall find Hippelitus was guiltless. Smith.
UNVULNERABLE. adj. Exempt from wound; not vulnerable.
The god of soldiers inform Thy thoughts with nobleness, that thou may'st prove
To flame unvulnerable, and stick it th' wars
Like a great sea mark, standing every day. Shakespeare.

He came to Tauris, a great and rich city, but unweav'd, and of no strength. Kroll's Hist. of the Turki.
UNWAKENED. adv. Unexpectedly; before any caution, or expectation.
She, by her wicked arts,
Too false and strong for earthly skill or might,
Unweav'd me wrought unto her wicked will.
His loving mother came upon a day
Unto the woods, to see her little son,
And chanc'd unweav'd to meet him in the way,
After his sports and cruel pastime done. Fairfax, b. i.
Still we fall, while prosperous blows the wind,
Till on some secret rock unweav'd we lie. Fairfax.
UNWAKENED. adv. Without caution; carelessly.
The best part of my powers
Were in the washes all unweav'd Devour'd by the unexpected flood. Shakespeare.
If I had not unweav'dly engaged myself for the present publishing it, I should have kept it till I had look'd over it. Dryden.
By such principles, they renounce their legal claim to liberty and property, and unweav'dly submit to what they really abhor. Frederick, No. 10.
UNWAKENESS. n. f. [from unweav'd.] Want of caution; carelessness.
The same temper which inclines us to a desire of fame, naturally betrays us into such slips and unweav'dness, as are not incident to men of a contrary disposition. Spektator, No. 256.
UNWAKENESS. adj. Not fit for war; not used to war; not military.

More spoils than honour to the victor yield. Wall.
Avert unweav'd Indians from his Rome,
Triumph abroad, secure our peace at home. Dryden.
UNWAKENED. adj. Not cautioned; not made wary.
Unexperienced young men, if unweav'd, take one thing for another, and judge by the outside. Lady.
May hypocrites,
That fly speak one thing, another think,
Drink on unweav'd, till by enchanting cups
Infatuate, they their wily thoughts disclose. Philips.
UNWARRANTABLE. adj. Not defensible; not to be justified;
not allowed.
At very distant removes an extemporary intercourse is feasible, and may be compass'd without unweav'dly correspondence with the people of the air. Glauville.
He who does an unweav'dly action through a false information, which he ought not to have believed, cannot in reason make the guilt of one in the excuse of another. Smith.
UNWARRANTABLY. adv. Not justifiably; not defensibly.
A true and humble sense of your own unworthiness, will not suffer you to rise up to that confidence, which some men unweav'dly pretend to, nay, unweav'dly require of others. Wate's Preparation for Death.
UNWARRANTED. adj. Not ascertained; uncertain.
The subjects of this kingdom believe it is not legal for them to be enforced to go beyond the seas, without their own consent, upon hope of an unweav'd conquest; but to resist an invading enemy, the subject must be commanded out of the country, where they inhabit. Bacon.
UNWARY. adj.
1. Wanting caution; imprudent; hasty; precipitate.
Nor think me to unweav'd,
To bring my feet again into the snare
Where once I have been caught. Milton's Agonistes.
So spake the false archangel, and insus'd Bad influence into th' unweav'd breast. Milton.
So talk'd the spirited fly snake; and Eve
Yet more amaz'd, unweav'dly thus reply'd. Milton.
Turning forth, he struck with all his might Full on the helmet of th' unweav'd knight. Dryden.

Since, lavish of their flock, they through the flood
And with their spoils the liquid regions fed? Blackmore.
UNWASHING. adj. Not growing less; not decaying.
Purest love's unweav'd treasure;
Constant faith, fair hope, long leisure;
Sacred Hymen! these are thine. Pope.
UNWASHED. adj. Not used to travel; not seasoned in the road.
Beasts, that have been rid off their legs, are as much for a man's use, as colts that are unweav'd, and will not go at all. Suckl.
UNWASHED. adj. Not weakened.
By reason of the exhalation of some air out of the glass, the elastical power of the remaining air was very much debilitated, in comparison of the unweav'd pressure of the external air. Boyle.
UNWASHED. adj. Not furnished with offensive arms.
As the beafts are armed with fierce teeth, paws, horns, and other bodily instruments of much advantage against unweav'd men; so hath reason taught man to strengthen his hand with such offensive arms, as no creature else can well avoid. Raleigh.
UNWEARABLE. adj. Not to be tired.
Desire to resemble him in goodness, maketh them unweav'd. Hosier, b. i.

Such welcome and unweav'd things at once,
'Tis hard to reconcile. Shakespeare. Macbeth.
Soon as th' unweav'd news
From earth arriv'd at heav'n-gate, displeas'd
All were who heard. Milton's Par. Lost, l. x.
Though he that brings unweav'd news
Has but a losing office, yet he that shews
Your danger first, and then your way to safety,
May heal that wound he made. Denham's Sophy.
For'd from her presence, and condemn'd to live;
Unweav'd freedom, and unthank'd reprieve. Dryden.
From the very first instances of perception, some things are grateful, and others unweav'd to them; some things that they incline to, and others that they fly.
Such hasty nights as these, would give very unweav'd interruptions to our labours. Bentley's Sermons.
UNWEAVER. adj. Not lamented; not bemoaned.
Our fatherless distress was left unweav'd;
Your widow dolours likewise be unweav'd. Shakespeare. Rich. III.
We, but the slaves that mount you to the throne;
A base, ignoble crowd, without a name;
Unweav'd, unworthy of the funeral flame;
By duty bound to forfeit each his life. Dryden.
UNWEAVER. adj. Not moist.
Once I meant to meet
My fate with face unweav'd, and eyes unweav'd;
Yet since I have thee here in narrow room,
My tears shall feel thee first aloft within thy tomb. Dryden.
UNWEAVER. adj. Not punished; not corrected with the rod.
Tremble, thou wretch,
That hast within thee undivulged crimes,
Unweav'd of justice. Shakespeare. K. Lear.

And then, unweav'd, he had the grace to cry. Pope.
UNWEAVER. adj.
1. Infalubrious; mischievous to health.
The discovery of the disposition of the air, is good for the prognosticks of wholesome and unweav'd years. Bacon.
There I a prisoner chain'd, scarce freely draw
The air imprison'd aloft, elose and damp,
Unweav'd draught; but here I find amends,
The breath of heav'n fresh-blowing, pure and sweet,
With day-spring-born; here leave me to respire. Milton.
How can any one be assured, that his meat and drink are not poisoned, and made unweav'd before they are brought to him? South.
Rome is never fuller of nobility than in summer; for the country towns are so infected with unweav'd vapours, that they dare not trust themselves in them, while the heats last. Hudson in Italy.
Children born healthy, often contract diseases from an unweav'd nurse. A. Burton on Diet.
2. Corrupt; tainted.
We'll use this unweav'd humidity; this gross, watery pumpion; we'll teach him to know turtles from fays. Shakespeare.
UNWEAVER. adv. Heavily; with difficult motion.
Unweav'dly they wallow first in ooze;
Then in the shady covert seek repose. Dryden.
UNWEAVER. n. f. Heaviness; difficulty to move; or be moved.
To what a cumberfome unweav'dness,
And burdenous corpulence my love had grown;
But that I made it feed upon
That which love worst endures, discretion. Donne.
The supposed unweav'dness of its massy bulk, grounded upon our experience of the inaptitude of great and heavy bodies to motion, is a mere imposture of our senses. Glauville.
UNWEAVER. adj. Unmanageable; not easily moving or moved; bulky; weighty; ponderous.
An agree, meeting many humours in a fat unweav'd body

Wallowing unweav'd, enormous in their gait, Tempest the ocean. Milton's Par. Lost, b. vii.
Unweav'dly fims of wealth, which higher mount,
Than files of martial'd figures can account. Dryden.
Nothing here th' unweav'dly rock avails,
Rebounding harmless from the plated scales,
That, firmly join'd, preserv'd him from a wound,
With native armour crufted all around. Addison's Ovid.
What carriage can bear away all the rude and unweav'dly lop-pings of a branchy tree at once? Watts's Impr. of the Mind.
UNWILLING. adj. Loath; not contented; not inclined; not complying by inclination.
The nature of man is unwilling to continue doing that wherein it shall always condemn itself. Hosier, b. v.
If thou dost find him tractable,
Encourage him, and tell him all our reasons;
If he be leaden, icy, cold, unwilling,
Be thou too. Shakespeare's Rich. III.
